Charles Weston Moustache

Canberra has lots of beautiful trees because of this man with the marvellous moustache. His name was Charles Weston and he worked here when Canberra was a very new city. There weren't many trees here when we started to build the city, so it was his job to decide which ones to plant. He could have picked any trees to plant here, but he did lots of thinking and experimenting to make sure he picked the best trees for our city – ones that would be beautiful and would grow big and tall. Other people continued his hard work after him but he was the one who started our garden city.
